Bartle & Gibson Announces Partnership with Electric Avenue

Bartle & Gibson Co. Ltd., a Western Canada-based premier plumbing, heating and electrical distributor, proudly announced today, Monday, November 25th, a new regional partnership to distribute Electric Avenue, providers of convenient, affordable and easy-to-use smart charging solutions for residential and commercial use, across Western Canada.

Electric Avenue was founded in 2021 with one simple mission: to speed up electric vehicle adoption in North America. All of their products are powered by custom-designed, open-source enterprise software that provides businesses with full management of their charging stations, from station health monitoring and flexible payment/billing options, to user access and dynamic load management. They are committed to continuously innovating and creating smarter solutions for our grid and environment.

Now Western Canada's premier plumbing, heating, and electrical distributor, Bartle & Gibson was founded by two Canadian businessmen who wanted to focus on relationships with customers and suppliers. Bartle & Gibson consists of 31 branches spread throughout Western Canada, which are supplied by three main distribution points. The company's continued growth and expansion is due in no small part to its dedication to providing an exceptional experience by supplying the right solutions at the right time. Bartle & Gibson continues to be the privately owned, 100% Canadian organization that its customers have trusted since 1944.

Please inquire with your local branch and salesperson for more information on the opportunities this partnership can offer your business.
